METHODOLOGY

The course is structured around nine basic topics of International Organisations that will serve as a starting point both for the expansion of theoretical knowledge from the proposed schemes and for the application of these to the practical assumptions raised as face-to-face and non-face-to-face activities.

The topics will be given a varied approach in order to present different ways of approaching the knowledge of the subject; broadly speaking, the preparation of the study topics is based on:

Systematic presentation of knowledge by means of generic and specific plans of legal institutions and concepts (logical trees, comparative tables, overall schemes); diachronic presentation of certain phenomena in order to associate the evolution of law with social, economic and cultural factors present at any given time; presentation of concepts and institutions from the sources.

The material provided by the teacher for theoretical study is usually accompanied by illustrative readings from various sources (textbooks, documents, newspaper articles, etc.), the purpose of which is to introduce students to legal concepts as a subject connected to reality, to serve as a starting point for the participatory and non-face-to-face activities detailed below, and to act as an incentive for them to broaden their knowledge.
