SPECIFIC DATA OF THE SUBJECTContextualization of the subject*Contribution to the professional profile of the degree

German is a valuable tool for any profession, and even more so in a career in Business and Business Administration, Law, Engineering, or International Relations, especially for those who wish to work in an international context.

This course introduces the concepts and language necessary to study or work in an international context. General knowledge of German is developed so that, by the end of the course, students are familiar with the language and able to communicate orally and in writing on the topics studied

Prerequisites

A placement test to be assigned to the appropriate group according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages or have passed level A1.

Competencies - Objectives

Competences

Listening and Reading Comprehension

The student will be able to:

- Understand phrases and the most common vocabulary related to personal interest topics (very basic personal and family information, shopping, place of residence, employment).
- Grasp the main idea of short, clear, and simple announcements and messages.
- Read very short and simple texts and find specific, predictable information in everyday written materials such as advertisements, brochures, menus, and schedules, and understand brief and simple personal letters.

Speaking and Oral Interaction

The student will be able to:

- Communicate in simple and routine tasks requiring a direct and straightforward exchange of information on familiar topics and activities, and engage in very short social exchanges, though generally unable to sustain the conversation independently.
- Use simple expressions and sentences to describe where they live and the people they know.
- Use a series of expressions and phrases to describe in simple terms their family and other people, living conditions, educational background, and current or most recent job.

Writing

The student will be able to:

- Write in simple terms about aspects of their past and surroundings, as well as matters related to immediate needs. Fill out forms with personal data.
- Write short, simple notes and messages related to immediate needs. Write very simple postcards and personal letters.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

General methodological aspects of the subject

In-class Methodology: Activities

The course is designed to be largely practical and student-centred, in order to encourage students to become autonomous learners and play an active role in their own learning process. This approach is designed to help them develop the communication skills they will need to communicate in German in their professional future.

In order for students to practice their oral skills class attendance is essential. Students will develop their oral skills individually, in pairs or in groups by carrying out different communicative tasks related to the topics being studied in the course manual as well as any supplementary materials that will be handed out during the course or be available in the Moodle virtual learning platform. The course is taught entirely in German and students will be expected to communicate in German at all times.

To achieve the specific objectives outlined and the selected competencies, the following methodology is used:

a) For each thematic block of the subject, the following learning process will be followed:

All classes will include:

- Lecture - Theoretical part of the class that serves as an introduction to the topic and explanation of the unit's contents with a special emphasis on linguistic aspects such as grammar and vocabulary.
- Cooperative work, guided work and seminars - Supervised in-class sessions in which, both individually and in pairs or groups, the student is the focus. The goal is the practice and production of Italian in the classroom. Classes are focused on active student participation with practical group and pair work, in addition to individual exercises and practice. Classes are focused on active student participation with practical group and pair work, in addition to individual exercises and practices. These activities may include written and oral exercises, comprehension exercises of audiovisual material, oral exchange of information, class discussions, reading, and analysis of texts. The teacher will stimulate and monitor the learning process of the students, observing, helping, and correcting when necessary.
- Oral presentation of topics or assignments - Individual or group oral presentations and/or assignments. The mastery of the subject, organization and structure of information, clarity of presentation, and, in the case of a group exercise, the active participation of each team member will be assessed.
- Tests and exams - Pair, group or individual written and/or oral tests organized by the student, as well as a final comprehensive exam that reflects the level studied by the student.

Non-Presential Methodology: Activities

Independent Study Methodology: Activities

Student's independent work:

In combination with the rest of the training activities, the assignments to be completed at home are essential for the acquisition of both general and specific competencies.

- Personal written work by the student:
The student will complete assigned exercises from the manual, addressing any questions or difficulties in the following session. In some cases, exercises may be collected and corrected. The purpose of these exercises is to practice and reinforce the knowledge, vocabulary, and structures presented in class.
- Personal work on oral comprehension by the student:

The student will complete assigned exercises to listen to or watch audiovisual materials, aiming to develop their oral comprehension in Italian.

- Personal reading work:

The student will read assigned texts to develop their written comprehension.

- Collaborative group work:

Students will work collaboratively in groups to prepare oral or written assignments. Outside of class, the student will prepare the assignments that will later be presented or developed in groups in the classroom.

Syllabus 2025 - 2026

Plagiarism/AI: Any work that is entirely or partially copied from an external source (e.g., the internet, a classmate, or artificial intelligence applications like ChatGPT) without proper citation, following the professor's criteria, will receive a grade of 0.

Students are free to use AI for anything that supports their learning, except when writing final versions of papers that will be graded or during tests and exams, where the goal is to demonstrate their own understanding of the subject matter. Within these clear boundaries, each student is encouraged to reflect on both the approach that best supports their learning and what constitutes appropriate and ethical use of AI.

REGULAR EXAMINATION

The final grade for the regular examination will be the average of the two semester grades: 1st semester = 50%, 2nd semester = 50%. However, in order to calculate the average, it will be essential to pass the second semester with a minimum grade of 5 out of 10. If the second semester is not passed, the maximum final grade that the student can obtain will be 4.0 and the student will have to take the next exam session.

If you do not take the final exam for the second semester, NP (Not Presented) will appear on the transcript.

SPECIAL EXAM SESSION

The special exam session covers the entire subject matter.
