SPECIFIC DATA OF THE SUBJECT

Contextualization of the subject
Contribution to the professional profile of the degree
The ethical quality of the management is an important challenge for every commercial company and the persons making decisions on its behalf. "Ethics, Business & Society" offers a good opportunity for MBA students to deepen their understanding of the social and organizational relevance of the ethical dimension of business, and the impact of CSR on society at large. The students must develop the ability to connect Ethics and CSR with the various aspects of company management, such as Strategy, Marketing, Financial Management, Human Resources, etc. CSR and the pursuit of Sustainability are not conceived here as just another functional area of the company, but as cross-cutting aspects that must be expressed in the policies and decisions of all areas and departments, guided by a clear vision of the organizational purpose.

The course intends to add ethical and humanistic abilities to the future managers of companies and other organizations. That way, their professional capacities will be enriched with superior performance in aspects beyond the economic bottom line of the firm.

Course objectives

- Discuss the current business model and broaden the understanding of the company and its role in society.
- Study the importance of the ethical dimension in the life of the company and its organizational culture.
- Identify the most ethically problematic areas in the companies and in business.
- Learn to apply moral reasoning to the ethical problems of management, arriving to decision proposals, both coherent and acceptable from an ethical point of view.
- Discuss the incorporation of Ethics and CSR into the organizational structure of companies.
- Propose a certain conception of Corporate Social Responsibility and its links with Business Ethics.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY

General methodological aspects of the subject

In-class Methodology: Activities

. Lectures:

The professor offers a theoretical and conceptual framework for understanding the theme under consideration, emphasizing some aspects and fundamental elements.

. Case study and scenario analysis:

The professor and the students, individually or gathered in groups, analyze cases and/or scenarios in order to apply theoretical aspects and to develop abilities of moral analysis, argumentation and synthesis.

. Guest speakers:

When possible, external speakers may be invited to share their personal and corporative experience with the students.

. Final exam:

The course requires a final paper and/or test, where the contents and skills acquired by the student must be reflected, along with the maturity of his/her judgement in matters of Business Ethics and CSR, and his/her personal conclusions. Students who have not passed the course evaluation, must make up for it: (i) delivering all missing and failed papers and exercises, and (ii) writing a final paper or examen (according to the professor's instructions) comprehending the whole course.

Non-Presential Methodology: Activities

Reading of books and articles following the professor's instructions.

Viewing of documentary films before the session where they are going to be discussed.

Groupwork to prepare the tasks assigned to the group.

Ratings

IMPORTANT CLARIFICATIONS:

The minimum grade required to pass the subject is 5.00.

The calculation of the average grade will only be made if the test or final paper, and the individual and group assignments have been delivered and approved on time.

Students who have not passed the course evaluation, must make up for it: (i) delivering all missing and failed papers and exercises, and (ii) writing a final paper or test (according to the professor's instructions) comprehending the whole course.

When the Dean exempts a student from presence-based attendance, and only in that situation, the course will be assessed through an exam (50%) and a final assignment (50%) both covering the whole content of the syllabus. Concrete instructions, when applicable, will be given by the teacher at the beginning of the semester.

Serious academic offences, such as plagiarism of previously published materials or copying in your exam or other evaluated activity, may lead to the opening of disciplinary proceedings and the loss of calls.

In the tests or papers presented in writing, a Turnitin index equal to or greater than 30% will require justification.

In order to take the final exam, it is a requirement not to have missed more than a third of the classes unjustifiably. If this requirement is not met, the student may lose the right to take the exam, as established by the faculty (art. 93.1 of the Reglamento General).
